Local bar to be suspended for 30 days

By PETE SCALES
City editor

As a result of last Wednesday's lengthy liquor control commission hearing, Charleston Mayor Murray Choate on Monday handed down a 30-day liquor license suspension to a local tavern.

Marty's, 1666 S. Fourth St., will have its liquor license suspended for 30 days beginning at midnight Nov. 12 until midnight of Dec. 11.

Choate, also Charleston's liquor control commissioner, said Monday the bar is allowed to appeal his decision within the next 20 days.

Dave Kinnaird, manager of Marty's, declined to comment on the liquor license suspension, and would not say if he would appeal the liquor commission's decision.

Choate said the bar faced either a fine up to $500, a suspension up to 30 days, or a complete revocation of its license.

"This was the most severe punishment that could be given other than revocation of the license," Choate said.

Wednesday's liquor commission hearing had been requested by Dale Holt and David Block, the owners of Marty's. The hearing stemmed from the coroner's investigation into the death of an Eastern student earlier this semester.

The Aug. 30 coroner's inquest into the death of Jennifer M. Woods, 18, who died from injuries she suffered in an Aug. 7 auto accident, revealed alcohol had played a role.

Gretchen Heise, 18, 214 Jackson Ave., and Karen Ignazito, 17, of rural Charleston testified to the coroner's jury they had been with Woods at Marty's prior to her death.

Marty's, by allowing the three who were under the age of 19 into the bar, and by allowing Ignazito to purchase alcohol, was in violation of city ordinances.

"This is their second offense in less than a year," said Choate referring to the three-day suspension of the license earlier this semester.

In addition to serving under-age patrons, the Class C liquor license that Marty's was issued states that a dining or restaurant area must be separated by a permanent wall from any bar area.

Both candidates sure of November victory

By the Associated Press

George Bush and Michael Dukakis waited for the finish line Monday in their marathon quest for the White House, the vice president confidently saying the nation was "coming in behind my candidacy" while his underdog rival vowed he'd spring a stunning "November surprise."

Both men raced across America in a full-day search for support while their campaigns spent nearly $1 million apiece competing 30-minute evening appeals on network television. Bush, the leader in the polls, also aired a new five-minute commercial that sharply attacked his Democratic rival.

"It's in the hands of the gods and the American people," the vice president said before heading for Houston and the final day of candidacy.

Dukakis was campaigning overtime in a operation drive for an upset. He told a crowd of 20,000 in California that voters would kick Bush "right out of our future." Democrats expressed confidence they could command majorities in the 101st Congress that will govern alongside the new president. They also angled for modest wins in the dozen statehouse races on Tuesday's ballot.

The final day of America's longest, costliest and some said-nastiest presidential campaign left little room for subtlety.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Lloyd Bensten appeared on stage in Texas with a caged quail-an obvious dig at his Republican rival, Dan Quayle.

Bush threw a stinging jab at Dukakis, saying, "We don't want to return to my opponent's favorite song: 'For all you do, this recession is for you.'"

Dukakis campaigned without letup on his pledge to stand up for "average working families." Grabbing rest when he could on his plane, he flew to a sunrise political service in Cleveland, then a rally in St. Louis, where he was greeted by a band playing "Rock Around the Clock." Still to come was more campaigning on the West Coast and then another middle-of-the-night flight to an Iowa rally and election-morning appearance in Michigan.

"I don't need sleep, I'm charging," he said in Ohio. "We're going to win," he added, predicting a "November surprise" that would land him in the White House.

The polls said otherwise, and few outside the Dukakis inner circle raised their voice to disagree. Pollster Lou Harris was one. He said Bush's margin was shrinking steadily.

Out of 52 polling places, 12 are for handicapped

By MIKE O'KEEFFE

Even though there are 52 polling places in Coles County, only 12 are not accessible to the handicapped.

"The 12 polling locations that are not accessible are not grossly accessible," Coles County Clerk Betty Coffrin said. "There is one (handicap voting booth) in each polling place with a wider booth and a shelf."

Some booths are equipped with ballot viewers to enlarge print, a bigger pen for arthritic people to mark the ballot with and instructions in larger print, according to Coffrin.

Coffrin also said that instead of spending money on handicap polling locations the use of "curbside voting" has been used to aid handicapped voters.

"People who live in a precinct who are handicapped call ahead and have a judge bring a ballot out to them," Coffrin said.

The only listed polling place for handicapped voters in Charleston is located in Precinct #3 at Otterbein United Methodist Church, 2175 E. Harrison Ave.

Other polling places include:

• Precinct #1, Coles County Jail, 702 Seventh St.

- Precinct #2, Charleston High School, 1615 Lincoln Ave. (south entrance)
- Precinct #4 and #5, St. Charles Catholic Church, 921 Madison Ave.

Sakharov promotes perestroika

BOSTON—Soviet activist Andrei Sakharov, on his first visit to the West, called Monday for international support for the political restructuring occurring in his homeland, saying its failure could threaten all humanity.

"I think that perestroika (restructuring) is an extremely serious process. The goals...are not false," he said. "This is not theater for the West, this is a genuine real process...The West must not fear perestroika."

"A greater danger to the world as a whole would be the failure of perestroika. Internal failure could be accompanied by external expansion. For the preservation of the system, expansion would be a necessity...It would be catastrophe from which would arise a great threat to all humanity," said the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize winner.

"For that reason I think the West should be genuinely interested in the success of perestroika and in supporting it."

600 killed by earthquake

BEIJING—A powerful earthquake struck just inside China's mountainous southern border, and two official radio stations reported Monday that 600 people were killed.

Radio Beijing and the Peoples' Central Broadcasting Station quoted the same reporter, Hu Jiagi, about the death toll. Radio Beijing also quoted him as saying most of the dead were in Shanmato, a village in Yunnan province that was nearly wiped out by the earthquake, which registered 7.6 on the Richter scale.

Hu's account could not be confirmed independently. An earlier Radio Beijing report said total casualties were 600, including dead and injured.

The State Seismology Bureau in Beijing, which had reported 18 killed and 54 injured, said it had no new figures. Dispatches from the official news agency Xinhua said at least 37 people were dead and more than 100 injured.

No telephone service was available to the affected part of Yunnan province near the Burmese border. It is sparsely inhabited by farmers, many from the Lahu and Va minorities.

Volunteers make last ditch effort

With the battle for Illinois' 24 electoral votes still rated a tossup, thousands of volunteers for presidential candidates Michael Dukakis and George Bush hit the phone banks and the streets Monday in a last-ditch drive to get out the vote.

Illinois Sens. Paul Simon and Alan Dixon led a "fly-around" Monday by state Democratic leaders covering nine cities in an 11th hour campaign blitz for Dukakis, while Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas put in an appearance in Moline to rally Republican support for Bush in the farm belt.

Simon told about 150 people in the state Capitol rotunda in Springfield that with a strong turnout by the party's voters, Dukakis could become the first Democrat to carry Illinois since Lyndon Johnson in 1964.

State Democratic Chair Vince Demuzio called the presidential race "a dead heat" in Illinois, but said Democrats have momentum, and the outcome will hinge on turnout.

"Whoever turns out Democratic or Republican tomorrow is going to win," said. "If we turn out our vote, we win."

Edward Murnane, executive director for the Bush campaign in Illinois, also stressed turnout.

"We think we're slightly ahead and going to win, but Illinois is a very close state and we need to get all of the Republicans out of the polls or Michael Dukakis will carry Illinois," Murnane said.

Chicago Sun-Times may face strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Journalists at the Chicago Sun-Times said Monday they would strike the newspaper Nov. 21, barring a breakthrough in contract talks with management.

"We are further apart now than we have ever been in negotiations," said Newspaper Guild unit chair Tom Gibbons.

But newspaper officials said they remain optimistic an agreement can be reached.

"The Chicago Sun-Times is disappointed that the Chicago Newspaper Guild has set a strike date," said spokesman Michael Soll, who chastized the union for alerting the media of the strike date.

"It is surprising that the guild continues to spend its time, money and energy attracting media attention instead of bargaining with the company," he said.

Soll said the company still believes an agreement can be reached at the newspaper, which has a circulation of 567,176.

The old contract covering reporters, editors, photographers and other news staff expired Nov. 31, but employees have continued working under it.

The newspaper management is seeking a 7 percent pay cut in the first year of the new three-year contract, the guild said. Management proposes to return 10 percent of the pay cut in the second year and return salaries to their current levels the third year.

Rocks good business in small town

CAVE IN ROCK (AP)—Not much traffic flows through this sleepy town on the Ohio River, but a rock store on its main street boasts worldwide, mail-order sales that owners claim make it a gold mine.

"We've got the best business in town, and people from around here don't even know it," says 23-year-old Larry Palmer of Palmer's Trading Post, which occupies a gray stone building in the heart of this community of 468 people.

"Rocks are a good business. You'd be surprised."

About 18 years ago, Palmer's father, John Palmer, established the store to get away from the dangers of being a fluorite miner. Rocks had always fascinated the elder Palmer, and he collected enough during his 16-year mining career to go into business.

Finding a beautiful rock is "looking at a beautiful woman," says the father, 55, who operates the store with his son. "You go, 'Wow!' That's why people collect rocks."

The bulk of the Trading Post's rocks are from the area. They carry prices ranging from 50¢ to $4,000 and weigh up to 10 pounds.

Phase two of Greek Court construction begins

Editor's note: This is the first in a four part series focusing on the Greek Court construction. Today's article focuses on the actual design of the building. Tomorrow's article will be about how the court is funded.

By DAN BUTTERLY
Staff writer

As the first phase of construction for the Greek Court is complete, many students are still looking for the whole issue to be clarified.

The second phase, or initial building of the court structures, is currently underway on Ninth Street with work being done everyday and even some evenings.

"Everything is currently running right on schedule for the Greek Court which should set the move in date at the Fall 1989 semester," said Lou Hencken, director of student housing.

The general contracting bid was awarded to Murphy Builders, Inc., Harrisburg, Ill. They were approved to construct two units of the court by the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing body, after Eastern President Stan Rives submitted the bid at a Sept 19 meeting in Oakbrook.

Phase two of the court will consist of the construction of two units. Each unit will consist of four fraternity/sorority chapters.

Each chapter will have 21 rooms which will house 42 students. Every two rooms, two students per room, will be connected by a private bathroom.

"The total cost of the structures should run around $2.2 million," said Verna Armstrong, vice president for administration and finance.

Each chapter will have a graduate assistant once the greek students are allowed to move in.

"The graduate assistant will have administrative duties and will assist the officers of each fraternity or sorority if it is so requested," said Student Housing Director Lou Hencken.

Graduate assistants are different than resident assistants who supervise the floors in the residence halls. A graduate assistant already obtained his bachelor's degree at a university and is working on a graduate degree.

"The assistant will act just like a house mom in the regular fraternity or sorority house," said Interfraternity Council President Scott Monge. "They will act in sort of a counseling role," Monge added.

However, the initial cost per person of staying in the house has not been officially determined.

"We hope the expense of staying in the court will be the same as the residence hall room and board costs," Hencken said.

"If fraternities want anything above and beyond the ordinary added to the inside or the outside of their house, it will understandably cost them more," he added.

Installment plan allows students to pay in multi-fees

By CRAIG EDWARDS
Administration editor

Although the $120 mid-year tuition increase approved by the Board of Governors in October is bad news for most college students, the good news is that they won't have to pay the entire bill at one time.

The tuition payment installment plan, which was first used during the spring 1987 semester, will allow Eastern students to pay spring tuition and student fees in two installments.

The first installment of $350, which includes a $20 non-refundable service charge, is due when students complete pre-registration Dec. 5-8 or at central registration Jan. 7, 9 and 10.

A bill for the second installment will be sent to students' local address during the fifth or sixth week of the spring semester with the total balance due approximately two weeks later.

With the mid-year tuition increase pushing spring tuition and student fee bills well over the $1,000 mark, university officials hope the installment plan will lift some of the financial burden from students and their parents.

Michael Taylor, Eastern's director of registration, said the plan was first implemented at Eastern two years ago. Currently, students can only use the tuition installment plan for the spring semester.

"With the Christmas season right before the start of the spring semester, it is tough for students to come up with all that money at one time," Taylor said. "This way, they can spread the payment out over a period of time," he added.

However, student usage of the installment plan was relatively low during the first two years it was available. John Morrissey of Eastern's office of planning services said only 496 students used the plan during the first semester it was available. Morrissey said approximately 1,145 students paid tuition and fees on the installment plan last spring.

Felicia Hayes, senior business major, is one student who has not taken advantage of the plan. "It was just as easy to pay it all at once," Hayes said. "I had the money, so I didn't want to worry about it anymore," she said.

But Taylor expects the tuition increase will prompt more students to use the installment plan. So far, he said there hasn't been many problems collecting the second installment from students in February. But Taylor said a hold is placed on a student's record if the total bill is not paid. He also said the registration office has the authority to impose a late penalty.

Faculty Senate will discuss faculty priorities

Eastern's Faculty Senate will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville Room to continue its discussion of faculty priorities.

Gary Foster, faculty senate chair, said the senate will also hear a letter from Western Illinois University's faculty senate concerning the Board of Governors' call for standardized learning outcomes. Eastern's faculty senate previously discussed the BOG's plan which would require the implementation of standard curriculums at the five BOG universities.

Continuing it's discussion of faculty priorities outlined in the study of undergraduate education, Foster said the senate has added faculty research as a new category to be evaluated.

Foster also said the senate will hear the minutes of an executive committee meeting with Eastern President Stan Rives.

Debate informs students on national issues

Professors Barbara Haney-Powell and Minh Dao spoke at a debate held Monday night at Taylor Hall. The debaters concentrated on issues pertaining to Tuesday's election.

By LORI HIGGINS
Staff writer

In a last minute effort to inform students of the issues of the presidential election, two Eastern professors debated politics from the budget deficit to international trade Monday evening.

The debate, which lasted approximately 45 minutes, featured two of Eastern's economics professors, Barbara Haney-Powell and Minh Dao. The Taylor Hall-sponsored event fell on the heels of last week's abrupt cancellation of a Student Senate-sponsored debate between the University Democrats and the College Republicans.

One of the hot topics of the debate was the budget deficit. Haney-Powell, who represented the Democratic side of the debate, said that there "certainly needs to be something done about it (the budget deficit)."

Haney-Powell said that the United States needs to reduce the budget deficit -- and if they don't want to raise taxes, they will have to either have a smaller defense sector or cut social programs. Haney-Powell added, "The United States can't afford to cut social programs."

On the other hand, Dao, who represented the Republican side of the debate, says that the only way to reduce the budget deficit is to raise taxes, adding this would not be favorable to the people.

One issue that the two candidates somewhat agreed on was international trade. Dao said "the difference between imports and exports has reached an all time high." He, along with Haney-Powell, is concerned that the situation here will be hurt by the fact that we are buying so much abroad and not at home.

The debate, which was designed to inform students of the issues, seemed to be beneficial to most. Scott Milano, senior economics major, said "I had an idea (of who I was going to vote for), but I wasn't sure -- after I heard some of the issues that the debaters spoke on, it sort of swayed me toward the Republican side."

Hollijoy Johnson, who is unable to vote in the election, said she came to the debate for the sole reason of being informed of the issues of the presidential election.

UB deserves credit for a great concert

It seems every year Parents Weekend is cursed with some adversity and this year was no exception.

But the University Board deserves some congratulations for pulling off, with what seemed like relative ease, the switch from the Four Tops to the Commodores.

Editorial Late Thursday the UB found out Four Tops lead singer Levi Stubbs had oral surgery and because his mouth was wired shut, the group was unable to honor their contractual agreement. With some quick changes, the possibility of disaster was averted.

Quite a few people had worked a long time preparing for the concert. Selection of the group to perform at the Parents Weekend concert was decided early in the semester by UB coordinators after they received preference sheets from parents. The UB then sent parents early ticket reservation forms in September.

The UB worked hard to decide what the parents wanted and planned to deliver with the Four Tops.

Some circumstances truly are beyond control and this was surely one of them. The UB cannot be faulted for illness. If the cancellation was the result of poor planning then we too would be disgruntled, but the manner in which UB handled this difficult situation deserves praise.

Although the time allowed to find a replacement was brief, the replacement band, the Commodores, delivered a rousing concert. The group hadn't played at a university in more than four years, but it didn't show. The band worked the crowd well, even allowing some audience members on stage.

This kind of concert was easy to accept and allowed for a nice play between parents, students and the group.

UB Concert Coordinator Diane Ducey, Chair Janelle Limper, Vice Chair Karol Klingel and David Millberg, director of student activities, all deserve credit for pulling off a nice transition. Without these people, and all of the other people such as security, stage crew and ushers, the evening would not have been the success it was.

Speculations on life in the White House

As I sit here, trying to figure out if I should punch the hole with George Bush's name next to it or the one with Mike Dukakis' name next to it, a few things have crossed my mind.

I wonder what life would really be like if these guys were actually in the White House...

•Would the press even be able to find Mike Dukakis sitting behind that big oak desk in the Oval Office? I'm surprised Bush didn't make Dukakis' height an issue throughout the campaign. During the debates, Dukakis had to stand on an elevated block, otherwise no one would have been able to see him. I can just picture "Duke" in a national address, perched behind that desk in the Oval Office, with his bushy eyebrows and his big, Greek nose just barely peering over the desktop.

Maybe his aides will rig him up in those kiddie chairs they use in restaurants.

•What happens if a First Lady dies in office? I mean, Barbara Bush is probably a great gal and everything, but she looks a hell of a lot older than George does and I can't help but wonder.

•I wonder if the Bush's are even going to let Dan Quayle stay in the White House overnight?

•I wonder if Lloyd Bentsen and his wife would let the Dukakis' stay overnight in the White House?

•I'll bet the minute Ronald Reagan steps down as president, he'll sign a multi-million dollar contract with a breakfast cereal company and within a week we'll find his face plastered on Wheaties boxes over America.

•To avoid answering questions from the press when he was about to board that Marine helicopter on the White House lawn, Ronald Reagan would hold his hand around his ear and pretend like he couldn't hear the questions because the helicopter was too loud. I wonder what kind of tricks George Bush or Mike Dukakis will try to pull?

•I wonder if Mike Dukakis' kids would end up living in the White House like Amy Carter and her brother Chip did when their dad was president.

•Do you think the great impersonators like Little would even be willing to attempt George Bush or Mike Dukakis impersonations?

•I wonder what foreign dignitaries would do when they found out that the first lady (Kitty Dukakis in this case) was named after an infant feline?

•I'll bet Dan Quayle is going to ask George Bush if they can build an executive golf course on the south lawn of the White House. And just to keep Quayle out of his hair, I'll bet Bush would do it.

•During the campaigns, a couple of Dukakis television ads showed Dukakis (the fatherly type of guy) at home in Massachusetts mowing the lawn with one of those old-fashioned push-mowers. I wonder if he'll use that same mower to cut the White House lawn on Saturday mornings?

•Lloyd Bentsen seems like the kind of guy who might want to have a few poker parties in the White House. Do you think he might be a nice guy to invite Dukakis to any of them?

—Jeff Madsen is the editorial page editor and regular columnist for The Daily Eastern News.

"Food for thought" on Election Day

If George Bush wins the election, the country will inevitably continue with another four years of economic prosperity utilizing the same type of government we've had for the last eight years. Yet, somebody has forgotten about the problems of common people.

It seems that the concentration of legislation lies in the protection of big business and the prosperity of the 'majorities' in America. Not enough thought is given to the three million homeless American people. Not enough thought is given to those people dying of malnutrition. Not enough thought is given to the state of the environment.

Yes, these issues are being addressed by the candidates. But what is actually going to be backed up and acted upon as legislation? What will the new president actually do to help these problems?

George Bush is calling himself the "Education President." Yet where has he been for the past eight years? He's been cutting federal funds for education by 25 percent. He also cut funding for secondary and elementary education by 40 percent. That's where he's been.

The environment is dying. Bush has opposed every bill to increase spending to clean up the environment since he has been in office. I suppose that it really doesn't matter now because the earth has already suffered unrepairable damage. As of now, it (the earth) has only about 100 years to live.

What is going to be done to create jobs? Dan Quayle has written a wonderful plan to provide jobs for unemployed, homeless, starving people. The plan created 6.5 million jobs according to the Department of Labor Statistics Report of August 1988.

Yet, under this plan, another 5 million jobs will be lost. About 52 percent of the jobs created will pay wages below poverty level, 54 percent are in companies with less than 100 employees, and less than 30 percent of these companies have any sort of health insurance plan.

What we are going to be concentrating on in the Bush/Quayle administration is a strong national defense. But do we really need all the military power we have? Take a piece of paper and make a grid of 1/2 inch squares, 11 squares on each side. Fill each of those squares with 50 dots (but put only one dot in the center square). You should have 605 squares and 6001 dots. This dot chart, created by the Center for Defense Information in Washington, D.C., shows the firepower shared by the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. today (18,000 megatons). This represents the firepower we have now. The number of weapons we have increases daily. George Bush wants to increase military spending again. He recently opposes a U.S.—Soviet Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty that would ban all underground nuclear testing and ultimately help stop the arms race.

I can understand where George Bush is coming from. He is coming from a wealthy New England family who has sheltered him from realities of common people since the day he was born. He is surrounded by his rich cronies. I can understand that he wants to protect his own kind.

The scary thing is that nobody really knows George Bush as a person. What is he really thinking?

We don't have to find out.

Seminar features stress tips

By JOANNE WRIGHT
Staff writer

Coping with stress will be the focus of a seminar to be held at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Afro-American Cultural Center, 1525 Seventh St.

The seminar will deal with minority students and teaching them to cope with job related stress in a positive manner.

Patricia Guidotti, director of career placement at Lake Land College, will speak on "problems facing minority students, with the focus on blacks."

Guidotti said she is working with Eastern's Kawan Cox-Bey, graduate assistant and director of the Afro-American Cultural Center.

According to Cox-Bey the seminar will cover how to deal with stress in the job situations. It will also focus on various support systems for students. Some businesses have support systems because students need to know and learn different methods of dealing with their stress.

The seminar is to be a learning experience, Cox-Bey said.

"We would like it to be a learning experience for those participating. Some situations students go through, someone else may have gone through the same thing.

"We plan to do some fun things to enlighten the audience," Guidotti said. "We'll have some role-playing and basically try to help minorities deal with stress in the work place."

The problems minorities face on the job and in everyday life can sometimes lead to stress filled lives, Guidotti added.

"Our goal is to help in any way possible," Guidotti said.

Although the seminar is aimed at minorities, it would apply to anyone in the business world, Guidotti said.

"We're talking about everyone who needs to handle work pressure and avoid stressful situations."

Guidotti said he will also discuss the importance of mentors. He noted that the seminar will include "discussion about their beneficiality."

Pizza place sued from car collision

By PETE SCALES
City editor

A man injured in a 1987 head-on collision with a pizza truck has filed suit against the pizza company in hopes of being compensated for the injuries he sustained.

According to the suit, Brent Werling was a passenger in a car that was stopped at the intersection of a private drive and Illinois Route 130, when a Monical's Pizza truck heading south on route 130, turned into the drive, hitting the car head-on.

The suit, filed by Charleston attorney Robert E. Brown, says the driver of the truck failed to keep a lateral look-out, and failed to adequately slow down before entering the drive, allowing the truck to skid or flip into the other car.

An assistant manager at Monical's Pizza, 909 18th St., refused to comment Monday on the case. He said neither he nor the present manager were employed by Monical's at the time of the accident.

Werling is seeking a sum from Monical's Pizza Corp. in excess of $15,000 for the damages sustained and the costs of the suit.

By SUSAN MOWRY

A panel discussion covering the selection and hiring process from an employer's perspective will be held Wednesday.

The Career Planning and Placement Center is sponsoring the seminar to be held at 7 p.m. in the Coleman Hall Auditorium, room 120. The panel, consisting of human resource/personnel, will address topics such as pre-screening criteria, resumes, placement credentials, references and interviews.

Shirley Stewart, director of the Career Planning and Placement Center, said the panel of four will discuss the pre-screening process they, as an employer, make in the selection process of an interview.

The panel will also share information in the areas of resumes. They will discuss what they look for in references, what questions they look for in placement credentials and what personal traits they look for in the candidate.

Suggestions for improvement and questions the candidate may ask in an interview will also be addressed by the panelists.

The panel is aimed to reach students from all six colleges on Eastern's campus. Stewart said,

I informed the panel that a wide variety of majors will attend and encouraged the panel to direct the topic to all majors.

Student Elections 1988

Advance and Victory parties ready to go . . .

By TERRI LEONARD

Staff writer

Two parties are competing in a tight Student Senate race, both parties are hoping to advance and strive for victory according to their names.

The Advance Team and Victory Party have been campaigning for seats on Student Senate for the Fall elections.

The Advance Team has 14 candidates and the Victory Party has 17 members competing in Wednesday's elections.

Senate Speaker Jane Clark, a member of the Victory Party said the senate is "basically a group of people working to try and improve life on campus."

Clark said the Victory Party is involved in several programs, such as the POW/MIA and the designated driver program.

"POW/MIA, which is designed to increase awareness among students, to tell them that there are still men missing in action from the Vietnam and Korean War," she said.

Other programs, "the designated driver program, voter registration drive and they are now working on a follow-up program, where they are contacting people that they registered to vote, to tell them when and where to vote, Clark said.

Roger Thomson, chairman of the Victory Party, feels that "every member is a hard worker, they all have leadership capabilities and the majority of them have experience."

Kristy Koch, a member of the Advance Team, said that "most of the people are trying to get on Student Senate because they want to do something about the issues concerning all students at Eastern."

Koch said "the team essentially has people running for the first time and since we're not well known, we have to work harder."

But because the Advance Team is new Koch hopes "people don't vote for the Victory Party just because they have more experience."

Nikki Tribuzzi, member of the Advance Team, said their main goal is "to improve the communication between students and the senate."

Freshman orientation is one of the issues the Advance Team is confronting. They feel "freshmen don't have the opportunity to learn more about the campus once they are here," Tribuzzi said.

Although the teams are running against each other they both share the feeling of accomplishment and that everyone in their group gave their all.

Candidates hope to advance

Karla Crawford

Advance Team member Karla Crawford said she is running for Student Senate in the residence hall district because they have a lot of strong ideas that she agrees with.

Crawford was elected to senate during the April elections after she became interested in senate through a friend.

"I think we've had a lot of good issues go through which we could have handled a little differently, but it's a learning experience," she said.

Crawford, a sophomore communication major, has been involved with the Model United Nations, the housing committee.

James Griffin

James Griffin, a sophomore political science major, said he can contribute his skills as a leader if elected to the residence hall district of Student Senate.

"As a student senator, I can serve the students and make them more informed. I want to give them a voice," he said.

Griffin, a member of the National Guard, said he joined the Advance Team because he thinks it represents the students the most.

Mercedes Fontaine

Freshman Mercedes Fontaine said she got interested in Student Senate through other senate members and from reading the newspaper.

"One day I decided maybe I could make a difference on the campus, so I got a petition," she said.

Fontaine, a political science major, said she wants to help guarantee freshman housing if elected to senate for the off-campus district.

Fontaine said she is a hard worker who likes to help people.

Chris Rabbers

Student Senate candidate Chris Rabbers on the Advance Team ticket, said she got interested with senate through friends. "I was unaware of a lot of campus information and I wanted to get more involved," she said.

Rabbers said if she is elected to the at-large district, she will get the things she sets her mind to done.

Rabbers, a sophomore zoology major, is involved with Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Diane Banhidi

Freshman Diane Banhidi said she wants to address guaranteed freshman housing, if elected to the Student Senate for the at-large district.

"I was forced to live in apartments this year because of the housing situation," she said.

An Advance Team member, she said she joined the team because she agreed with just about everything they are working for.

Banhidi, a pre-business major.

Andrew Daniel

Junior Andrew Daniel said he can bring fresh ideas and an alternative opinion to Student Senate if he's elected to the off-campus district.

"I feel that there's more that the senate can do that they haven't done," he said.

An Advance Team member, Daniel said he attended a meeting before deciding to join the team, which he said seemed progressive.

Daniel said he got interested in senate because of the athletic fee referendum and the idea of raising tuition again.

A speech communication major, Daniel is also involved with the Radio and TV Center.

Charles Franzen

Advance Team member Charles Franzen said he wants to make Eastern better for upcoming students by being elected to Student Senate in the at-large district.

"I want to voice other students' views who can't get their ideas across," Franzen said.

Franzen said he is running because he wants to get involved on campus.

Franzen is a sophomore pre-engineering major.

NIKKI TRIBUZZI

Speech communications major Nikki Tribuzzi said as a senior she has a lot of time to devote to Student Senate if elected to the off-campus district.

"I want the experience in leadership. I think it would be a great experience and to represent the students off campus is also important," she said.

Tribuzzi, a member of the Advance

Team, said she wants to insure quality the upcoming students.

Rob Mandeville

Rob Mandeville, an Eastern cheerleader said he's been involved with government practically all his life.

Mandeville, a sophomore communication management major, is seeking election to the at-large district of Student Senate.

"I felt I would like to get more involved in basically everything on campus," Mandeville said.

A member of Sigma Pi fraternity, Mandeville would like to give some new ideas for freshman orientation, if elected.

Christy Koch

Freshman Christy Koch said Student Senate can give her the opportunity to help other students if she is elected to the at-large district.

"I want to contribute some fresh ideas to the same problems we have had in the past," she said. "We're going to be dealing with them for the next four years."

An Advance Team member, Koch said she's always been involved with student government.

A political science major, Koch is also involved with the Sigma Sigma Sigma sorority.

Suzanne Dennis

Advance Team member Suzanne Dennis said she's running for Student Senate because it is a great way to get involved and she is a hard worker.

Dennis, a sophomore political science major, is running for the residence hall district.

Frank Bart

Advance Team founder Frank Bart said he has experience and can make decisions on how Student Senate can better represent the students.

Freshman Bart, a chemistry major, has been involved with student government since high school.

He said he started the Advance Team "to gather the people I thought would do the job."

Bart petitioned on to Student Senate in September and is seeking a full term in the at-large district.

Hopefuls look for victory

Roger Thomson

Roger Thomson said his five semesters experience will allow him to help the new senate members learn the ways to get things done if re-elected to the off-campus district.

Thomson said he started the Victory Party to pull finances and man power to help get the whole party elected.

"I still have things I want to get accomplished," he said.

The senior political science and psychology major is involved with the College Republicans, legislative leadership, academic affairs and is an alumnus of Delta Chi fraternity.

Sue Stueland

Sue Stueland said she has "different voice" to offer Student Senate if she is elected to the off-campus district.

"I was involved with my sorority for the last three years and for a change, I wanted to get involved with the university," she said.

A Victory Party member, Stueland said she got involved with the party because of the diversity of the members.

Stueland, a senior political science major, is the treasurer of Sigma Sigma Sigma and a member of the Student Legal Services Board.

J.R. Locey

Getting more involved with the University is a main reason for running for Student Senate, J.R. Locey, a junior speech communications major said.

"I want to have a say in all of the student issues that are happening," Locey said.

A Victory Party member, Locey said he joined because he respects the members.

Locey is running in the off-campus district, he is the vice president of Sigma Pi, and the main events chair of Students Against Multiple Sclerosis.

Brian Moushon

Brian Moushon, a sophomore pre-business major, said he would like to insure up-to-date library materials if re-elected in the at-large district.

"I think the number one concern for the student senators is they need to be responsive to the students," he said.

Moushon has been involved with Residence Hall Association, in addition to senate's housing committee.

Moushon, has been a senate member since April when he won a half-seat as a write-in candidate.

Jane Clark

Student Senate Speaker Jane Clark said she knows which channels to use to get things done.

Clark, who was elected to a full term last fall, is running in the at-large district on the Victory Party ticket, which she said has the greatest strength in its enthusiasm.

"I feel like I represent the students. I feel like we have accomplished a lot," she said.

Clark, a junior political science and journalism major, is involved with BACCHUS.

Larry Peetz

Larry Peetz, a member of the University Board and secretary of the College Republicans, said he's always had an interest in politics and student government.

"I enjoy it (Student Senate) and the people who are on it and I represent the students well," said Peetz, a member of the Victory Party.

Peetz, who is seeking re-election in the residence hall district, was first elected to a half-seat on senate in the spring elections.

Chris Dicianni

Getting a chance to learn about the campus was an important reason for freshman Chris Dicianni to get involved with Student Senate, she said.

"I really think they do a lot of good for the campus, I'm all for senate," Dicianni said.

Dicianni is now seeking a full seat in the residence hall district.

Dicianni, a pre-business major, is also a Delta Sigma little sister. She said she joined the Victory Party because she shares similar ideas with the party and it helps her to get involved in the important issues.

Rob Cray

Senate member Rob Cray said he takes on responsibility well and is not afraid to speak his mind.

"I can contribute my ideas through committees and philanthropy for senate, which I am working with now," Cray said.

Cray, a member of the Victory Party, said he got interested in Student Senate through his fraternity, Delta Tau Delta.

Cray, a junior speech communications and business administration major, petitioned on to senate in September.

Diane DeGrazia

Diane DeGrazia, who petitioned on to Student Senate in September, is seeking election for a full term in the residence hall district.

"I was in government in high school and I came here and knew that it was exactly what I wanted to do," she said.

DeGrazia, a freshman business education major, said she has the experience and skills necessary. If re-elected, the Victory Party member said she wants to work on the student awareness committee.

Martha Price

Martha Price, a freshman home economics major, said getting involved with Student Senate has always been a goal. Running for a full seat in the residence hall district, Price petitioned on to senate in September.

"I've learned a lot from senate and I'd like to continue that," she said.

Price, a member of the Victory Party, said the party has a lot of experience.

Price served on the Illinois State Board of Education, is a member of the Home Economics Association.

Bret Gerber

Bret Gerber, freshman political science and finance major, said he has good organization skills and is zealous, which will help him if elected to Student Senate.

Running for the residence hall district, Gerber is the chair for the EIU talent show.

"Being a part of RHA, I feel there's not adequate representation for the residence hall students," he said.

As a Victory Party member, he said it is the best party with the most experience.

Paul Norkett

Paul Norkett, who petitioned on to Student Senate in September, said he is hard working, persistent and self-demanding as a senate member.

"I'm involved with some programs and I feel I have to stay in senate to get them to come out the way I wanted," Norkett said.

A Victory Party member, Norkett said he became interested in senate through his fraternity, Delta Tau Delta.

A sophomore political science major, Norkett is also involved with the Intercollegiate Athletic Board.

Mike Bertolani

If elected to the at-large district, Delta Tau Delta member Mike Bertolani said his fraternity experience will help him organize his time and input to Student Senate.

"I'd like to help the designated driver program increase and improve," the Victory Party member said.

As a sophomore advertising major, Bertolani has helped with Republican Mike Weaver's campaign to get re-elected.

Ken Wake

Ken Wake said he got interested in Student Senate through the party's co-founder Roger Thomson.

"I know Roger (Thomson) from the Illinois Department of Revenue where we both worked and he felt I was hardworking and the type of person senate needed," Wake said.

Wake is a sophomore economics major. Running in the off-campus district, Wake said he joined the Victory Party because they have the leadership qualities.

Tyron Browder

Tyron Browder said he's running for Student Senate because he wants to earn some recognition as an Eastern student.

Browder is a sophomore pre-business and finance major.

Browder, a member of the Victory Party, said "they're a bunch of winners, I'm willing to learn from them."

Browder is running for the off-campus district.

Mary Kennedy

Mary Kennedy said she can contribute and be an asset to Student Senate if she is elected to the at-large district.

A member of the Victory Team, she said she wants to represent the student body as best as she can.

"The party has a lot of leadership qualities," said Kennedy.

Kennedy, a sophomore political science major, is also involved with the Delta Zeta sorority.

Marcy Sweatman

Freshman Marcy Sweatman said she wants to be elected to Student Senate to help the rest of the University.

A Victory Party member, she said, "We're trying to better ourselves and the university."

A pre-law and business major, Sweatman is running for the residence hall district.

Independent

John Dobbs

John Dobbs

John Dobbs, an independent, said a combination of both parties should be elected to Student Senate.

"Being an independent, people have talked to me from both parties. They don't like each other," Dobbs said.

Dobbs, a sophomore psychology major, said he has some ideas about how to improve student awareness.

Dobbs, who is running for the at-large district, is also involved with the juggling club.

Hypnotist leaves Union crowd spellbound Monday night

ROCHELLE ELLIOTT

Staff writer

Dr. Jim Wand captured many students in a near-capacity crowd of students through hypnosis Monday night in the Union Grand Ballroom.

What we learn in a hypnotic state is an effective way of reaching a goal.

Among the many purposes it is used to break habits as well as improve skills that they may not be satisfied with.

Wand has been putting large numbers of people under his spell for years.

Although he only works with interested people up on the stage, those in the audience who want to go into a hypnotic state can do so with concentration.

Nearly anyone can be hypnotized, Wand said. "You don't get scared or wasted."

Unlike myth has led people to believe, "Hypnosis isn't as easy as looking someone in the eye," Wand said.

With his group of volunteers on stage, Wand asked the students what they hoped to gain or lose from the experience and received many responses of "better study habits."

The eye-fixation method he used involves keeping the eyes on a red light, feet flat on the floor and palms comfortably resting on the knees. Concentration is kept on the light and his voice.

After you have been hypnotized "you do come out with a lot of energy, and you will never fear it again," he said.

Wand received his doctorate from the University of Southern California and is licensed as a hypnotherapist. He also holds degrees in psychology and counseling.

He chose his career when he was an extremely overweight freshman in college and feared speaking in front of people; hypnosis helped him control these problems.

Wand also added that he has picked up all his stage techniques himself.

Before Wand took the stage the crowd was relaxed with the jokes of John Winter, a Midwestern-based comedian that has performed at colleges and clubs all over the United States.

As an opening act, he presented a short set of roaring jokes geared to young adults.

door open" for the Gateway.

Therefore, Eastern, Western Illinois, Northern Iowa and Southwest Missouri State -- all formerly part of the Mid-Continent Football League -- joined Illinois State and Southern Illinois of the MVC to form what Viverito calls a "premiere" conference.

Indiana State became the seventh Gateway football member in 1986, while conference schools Bradley, Drake and Wichita State do not have football programs.

Viverito's claim of the Gateway's strength was confirmed in July of 1986 when the NCAA Football Committee voted to waive the league's 2-year waiting period and grant the conference an automatic bid to the national playoffs after one season.

Eastern advanced to the quarterfinals of the playoffs that season and this season's champion Western Illinois has consistently been ranked in the top five in I-AA polls.

While the football league obviously brings a lot of revenue to the league, Viverito pointed out the grid squads do not carry women's sports, which were the original focus of the Gateway.

"The finances are separate, but resources are shared," Viverito said.

Viverito said she doesn't plan to have an active role on what future moves the Gateway makes.

"Our goal is to serve the wishes of our members," she said. "What direction they want to go will be the direction that we go."

As is the case with women's programs around the country, Viverito said that keeping costs manageable is an ongoing task.

"I would say we have 10 healthy programs," Viverito said. "But you pick up a paper and see that schools like Ohio State and Michigan and starting to have trouble making ends meet. It's just that women's revenues are flat and expenses are escalating."

Viverito also said she doesn't expect expansion to affect the Gateway in the near future.

"Ten (schools) is an optimum number for our women's sports," she said. "If there were more, divisional play would likely come about and it would be beyond the ideal."

Chicago.

"I think that (the move) rang the bell," Ippoliti said. "We had to get on the fast track."

Once in Chicago, Ippoliti scored his first major success with television.

ESPN has agreed to broadcast the AMCU conference championship in March, and Ippoliti negotiated a 16-game conference package with Chicago's SportsVision cable company.

"I had it (the SportsVision deal) in the works," Ippoliti said. "It was through the cooperation of all the institutions. A major goal was being in a major market, (and) I see this as a building block for the conference."

Now Ippoliti says he will turn his attention to gaining more exposure for the conference with the public at-large.

"I have to get it out on the streets," Ippoliti said. "I have to market it better. That doesn't happen overnight. We're fighting an identity crisis."

The steps to improve the AMCU's image include the TV contracts and a new conference newspaper, The AMCU Courier. But one measure Ippoliti said he is not considering is a name change for the conference.

"Right now -- to be frank -- the issue is dead," Ippoliti said. "AMCU conference -- that's what it's going to be known as."

Many officials at conference schools have been critical of the cumbersome name and the difficulties it causes in marketing and publicity.

But, one issue Ippoliti said he is ready to address is expansion of the eight-team league.

"Expansion is on the agenda," Ippoliti said. "We're in the process of setting a criteria."

Youngstown State, Akron and Northern Illinois are the front-runners for admittance into the league, Ippoliti said.

"We have to look at what they could contribute," Ippoliti said. "We have to develop a criteria -- what we can do for them, and what they can do for us."

Redskins next for Tobin

LAKE FOREST (AP)—Acting Chicago Bears coach Vince Tobin said Monday he doesn't expect coach Mike Ditka to be involved in preparations for next week's NFL game against the Washington Redskins.

His No. 1 priority is to get well, Tobin said of Ditka, who suffered a mild heart attack last Wednesday and is making rapid progress toward recovery.

Ditka was to undergo a stress test at Lake Forest Hospital later this week, and doctors said he could be home by the weekend. But they could not say when he would resume coaching duties.

Tobin didn't have to make many decisions in the Bears' 28-10 victory Sunday when the Bears visit the Redskins.

"Every game takes on a personality of its own," Tobin said. "I didn't have to make any critical decisions yesterday and I hope it's the same this week."

Asked whether Ditka might have some input into the game plan against Washington, Tobin said he didn't think so.

The offense will prepare the attack," he said. "When Mike was here, he had a big input into that. But I have my own problems as offensive coordinator. Most of the preparation will come from the assistant coaches."

Playing Washington will be no different than any other team we play. You have to play well to Bears players said that what they miss most about Ditka is his motivational influence.

Mike Ditka is a great motivator," said linebacker Mike Singletary. "Somebody will have to pick up the slack."

Center Jay Hilgenberg agreed, adding, "what Washington has done to us the last two years will motivate us."

The Bears, who won the Super Bowl after the 1985 season, have been knocked out of the playoffs by the Redskins each of the past two seasons.

"I don't think I will have to say much," Tobin told reporters. "This game takes care of itself as motivation goes. They beat us twice and they are the Super Bowl champions."

Singletary, who likes to speak in extremes, said it would take a perfect game to beat the Redskins, but Tobin disagreed.

"You never play a perfect game," said Tobin. "Instead, you have to be smart, aggressive and minimize the number of mistakes you make."

Asked if he considered himself successful after his first game as a head coach, Tobin's evaluation was simple.

"We won, that's all," he said. "If you win, you did a good job. If you lose, it's a bad job."

Rolson earns GCAC award

Jeff Rolson rounded out his football career at O'Brien Stadium in impressive fashion Saturday, collecting 12 tackles and also the Gateway Conference Player of the Week Award.

Rolson, a 6-1, 265 pound senior, becomes the second Eastern player in many weeks to be given the honor, with linebacker Jeff Mills being last week's recipient.

The fourth Panther to be named the league's player of the week this season, Rolson sacked Western Kentucky quarterback David Armstrong three times in Eastern's 6-0 upset victory.

Rolson has six sacks going into this week's non-conference contest at Boise State. His Saturday's performance enabled the Farmer City-Mansfield High graduate to surpass John Jurkovic season sack mark of five.

Nine of Rolson's 12 tackles Saturday were unassisted.

I-AA poll shuffles top teams

It was a topsy-turvy week for the NCAA I-AA football elite, as the Top 20 poll released Monday reveals a new No. 1 team for the second week in a row and the team that held the top spot for seven weeks tumbling to No. 14.

Stephen F. Austin University claims No. 1 this week, following its 30-7 win over Nicholls State on Saturday and its upset win of North Texas State two weeks ago.

North Texas sinks to No. 14 after losing its second game in as many weeks, falling Saturday to No. 7 Northwestern State of Louisiana 25-17.

Last week's No. 1, Marshall University of West Virginia, lost its first game of the season in a 20-3 loss to No. 12 Citadel. Marshall slips to No. 6.

Gateway Conference member Western Illinois failed in its bid to be the first I-AA team to win 10 games, falling Saturday to Northern Illinois 16-6.

The loss to Division I Northern drops the Leathernecks from No. 2 to No. 4 in the poll.

Pennsylvania became the first Ivy League school to enter the poll this season, bringing its spotless 8-0 mark to a tie with Florida A&M at 19.

Western Kentucky, which Eastern upset Saturday 6-0, falls from No. 5 to No. 11.

Boise State, which hosts Eastern next Saturday, moved up two places to No. 15 following its 31-10 win over Idaho State.

Eastern second in AMCU poll

By JAMES BETZOLD

CHICAGO—Eastern was chosen to finish second in the Association of Mid-Continent Universities preseason basketball poll released Monday.

"I think it's good," Eastern coach Rick Samuels said. "(But) our kids have to realize that it's based on what we've done in the past. I think it's reflective of our finish last season."

The Panthers won 10 of their last 11 games last season to finish 17-11 and 7-7 in the AMCU.

Eastern senior guard Jay Taylor was also named to the AMCU preseason all-conference team.

1987-88 league titlist Southwest Missouri State was chosen to repeat as champion after posting a 22-7 record last season, but Bears coach Charlie Spoonhour was tongue-in-cheek about his team's chances.

"We're picked to win, (but) I didn't pick us to win," Spoonhour said. "People are excited about this year. I'm so excited about them that we practice two times a day."

"Our team has a chance to be decent. I don't understand how people can pick a team first with only two people coming back."

Last season the Bears were the AMCU's first automatic qualifier to the NCAA tournament after gaining an at-large bid in 1987.

The Bears are led by senior center Kelby Stuckey, who also was named to the preseason all-conference team.

Southwest Missouri received 19 of 21 first-place votes in the poll of league athletic directors, sports information directors and coaches. Eastern was first on the other two

"The people (from Eastern) scored against us are Spoonhour said. "I think a lot of teams that can be a threat."

Another team that could be in the AMCU race is Illinois-Chicago, which was ranked in the poll, only two points behind Eastern.

"I think we'll be an exciting team to watch," Flames coach Bob Hallberg said. "We're hard and aggressive."

The Flames added senior forward Derrick Johnson to their conference team. Junior Jason Reese of Northern Illinois senior forward Jim Ford led out the all-conference squad.

In the team poll, Wisconsin Green Bay was ranked fourth, Northern Iowa fifth, Illinois sixth, and Valparaiso seventh.

Cleveland State, which was placed on probation early in the year, wasn't eligible for the poll and won't be eligible for the conference championship.

"I think the regular season games are going to mean more than ever," CSU coach Mackey said.

The yearly poll has been held by Cleveland State first each year for the past three seasons.

AMCU looking to form new identity

By JAMES BETZOLD
Sports editor

The Association of Mid-Continent Universities entered its seventh year of existence this summer with a new leader, a new home and new goals.

On July 1, Jerry Ippoliti took over as commissioner of the conference in new league offices near downtown Chicago. In addition, Ippoliti brought on a new agenda for the conference which boasts member schools from the Bible Belt (Southwest Missouri), the Grand Prairie (Eastern and Western Illinois) and the inner city (Illinois-Chicago).

"Being a Midwesterner myself, I knew what the (athletic) programs were all about," said Ippoliti, who formerly served as associate athletic director at Northern Illinois. "I think the diversity makes this conference interesting. Every school forms its own identity."

Ippoliti toured each campus earlier this year, and two new programs he has instituted -- a drug awareness program and a new athletic center -- are already under way.

An AMCU representative has visited each of the conference schools for a two-day drug education program for student athletes. Meanwhile, the compliance program will concentrate on keeping member schools within NCAA regulations.

"It (the compliance program) is completely new," Ippoliti said. "It ranges from financial aid to registration to admissions to academic advisers -- everyone involved in the athletic program."

The new compliance program comes in the face of the Cleveland State basketball scandal that left the Vikings on probation and ineligible for post-season play.

"You don't demean Cleveland State," Ippoliti said. "Everyone makes mistakes. My job is to give them the feeling they can communicate with us."

Cleveland State brought the AMCU its first national exposure with its 1986 upset win over Indiana in the NCAA tournament. But Ippoliti is going after even more exposure with the league's relocation from Green Bay to

Conferences on the rise

Gateway has come a long way

By DAVID LINDQUIST
Associate sports editor

Patty Viverito remembers the early days of her tenure as commissioner of the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference.

"I packed whatever I could fit in my Honda and drove to Charleston," Viverito said. "The people at Eastern gave me an office and told me to start a conference."

That was the fall of 1982. Six years later, Viverito said she no longer feels like a lonely pioneer.

The current Gateway headquarters are in St. Louis, where Viverito heads a six-person staff that includes an assistant commissioner, a sports information director and two supervisors of officials.

"I think that physical description says a lot. It's an easy way to materially describe the progress we've made," she said.

The league originally consisted of eight universities in the Midwest that participated in women's sports.

Team championships were awarded in the sports of cross-country, field hockey, volleyball, swimming & diving, track & field, golf, tennis, softball and basketball.

"We started with zero tradition as a conference, and today we have automatic NCAA tournament bids in many sports," she said.

But the topic of automatic bids also reminds Viverito of a setback the conference experienced in 1984.

"When the NCAA was at ground zero with women's tournaments, they initially gave out a lot of conference bids," Viverito said. "But they became stingy with some after time and we lost our softball bid. Spring will be the first automatic bid we will receive after year absence."

Overall, however, Viverito peaks have overshadowed during the Gateway's history.

"The addition of football is a significant move," Viverito said. "The 1985 formation of team, NCAA I-AA football is a significant move."

"I credit President (Stan) with having the vision to start existing league schools and the Gateway as an umbrella organization," Viverito said.

Viverito said the now defunct Missouri Valley Conference football league (which included some Division I schools, some AA schools and two schools that didn't have football) was a monious situation that "I
